Energy procurement & Consumption management

European energy market continues to grow in its inherent flexibility. By adding more renewables to energy grid it's becoming very unpredictable thus active supply-demand mechanisms are needed. As a matter of this, the transition will be followed by whole new playground for energy assets in Europe and require state of art asset management systems in order to cope with increasingly complex market conditions. By partnering up with RPC your company can stay ahead of competition by simply having better energy market insight, better energy market access and asset optimisation, while ensuring stable operations of your assets.

Every business has to buy energy in order perform — but knowing when to buy and what to buy can be a challenge. Customers without access to market information and a platform to interact with competitive energy suppliers might pursue procurement strategies that end up costing them unnecessarily.

“We look at sources of flexibility within your energy use and market
the excess energy”

Demand response & Flexibility

If you have the flexibility to shift energy-consuming activities, this is a huge opportunity for better energy productivity. With an active asset management (smart demand management approach), energy managers have the visibility to understand when these charges are incurred and can take measures accordingly to shift production schedules or turn off non-essential equipment until the critical period passes.

We help you find sources of flexibility:

- ✔ On-site generation
- ✔ Controllable loads
- ✔ Renewable assets
- ✔ We aggregate your flexibility across our VPP engine and market it
- ✔ You get a fair share of the value created
